Many Palm Springs residents know of pioneer Raymond Cree only because a local school is named after him. In fact, Cree was one of the area's most important developers who recognized early on the exciting potential of the Coachella Valley's wide open spaces and captivating beauty. One of Cree's spectacular contributions is the lavish hacienda he built back in the 1930s as his own private hideaway. Sprawled over two and a half acres of lush landscaping, the Cree Estate captures t...
